Jose Luis de Miguel

Deputy Director, Fundación General CSIC

José Luís de Miquel joined Fundación General CSIC as Deputy Director on December 2010, where he works on establishing the conditions for a fruitful private-public partnership in scientific research. Since May 2008 he had been working as Deputy Vice-president for Knowledge Transfer of the Scientific Spanish Research Council (CSIC), position held after being director of the Technology Transfer Office of this same institution for three years. He formed part of the expert group set up by the Ministry of Science and Innovation to prepare the new Act on Research, Technology and Innovation, passed in 2011. He joined LES (Licensing Executives Society) Spain & Portugal in 2005 and was elected its President in March 2011. Previously he had held several managing positions at the Telecommunications Market Commission (the Spanish telecom and audiovisual regulator), where he joined since its creation in 1996, participating very actively in its initial design and development. He worked in Telefónica I+D (the R&D Company of the Spanish incumbent telecom operator) for seven years. During that period, he first performed as a researcher, being Project Leader in the Optoelectronics Division, and later as a manager, as Division Head of External Technical Relations, representative of Telefonica in the R&D Board of the Unisource Consortium and Division Head of International Development. He made his Ph.D. thesis in the Institute of Materials Physics of the CSIC and in the Max Planck Institute for Solid State Physics. For a three years period, we worked as a Post-Doctoral fellow in Bellcore and in AT&T Bell Labs, both in the USA.
